

INFINITE POTENTIAL

SUMMER SERIES 2026

THE VITAL FIVE WORKBOOK

Building the Capacity for Sustainable Change

How to Use This Workbook

This workbook is designed to be something you can return to again and again, anytime you're facing a change that hasn't stuck or a goal that keeps eluding you.

It's built around one central idea: sustainable change doesn't start with action; it starts with inner capacity, and the five skills below are the building blocks of that capacity. They work as a self-reinforcing system, not steps in a sequence but a way of operating, and the more you practice one, the more naturally you access the others.

How to work through it: Start with the Anchor Question on the next page, where you'll name one real, specific obstacle that's alive for you right now. Then bring that through each skill section. The reflection questions are designed to be worked slowly, not answered quickly. Write what comes up, not what sounds right.

You don't have to work through the whole workbook in one sitting. One skill at a time is enough.

"Your life does not get better by chance, it gets better by change." — Jim Rohn

Your Obstacle

Before you work through the five skills, get specific. Name the one thing this is actually about for you. It can be in any area of your life, whether a professional goal, a relationship pattern, or a personal change you've been circling for months or years. The more real and specific you are here, the more the rest of this workbook comes alive.

THE ANCHOR QUESTION

What is one change you are not making, or one goal that would require you to change, that you have not yet achieved?

Name it below. Be specific. This is your thread for everything that follows.

MY OBSTACLE

A LITTLE MORE CONTEXT — WHAT MAKES THIS FEEL STUCK OR OUT OF REACH?

Awareness

Become the observer of your life

Awareness is the condition that precedes everything, and most importantly, it precedes choice. When we can zoom out and witness ourselves, our patterns, our emotions, our stories about what's possible, we unlock a new range of options. Most of the time we're too inside the movie to see it clearly.

KEY INSIGHT

Awareness always precedes choice. The goal isn't to fix anything right away; it's to see more clearly.

REFLECTION — APPLY THIS TO YOUR OBSTACLE

Where are you too close to it to see it clearly? If the observer version of you was watching from a distance, what would they notice?

WHAT I NOTICE FROM A DISTANCE

PRACTICE TO SUPPORT THIS SKILL

Daily Witnessing — a 5-minute journaling practice

Each morning or evening, zoom out and write for 5 minutes from the observer perspective, not analyzing but simply noticing. What patterns do you see? What stories are running?

Thought Choice

Choose your thoughts on purpose

We have approximately 60,000 thoughts a day, and the majority are reruns, looping beneath the surface, subconscious, shaping our identity, keeping us small in ways we don't even recognize. When we realize we have a choice in our thoughts, and learn to make those thoughts conscious, we move from reactive to empowered.

KEY INSIGHT

Thoughts are habits, just like behaviors. The ones that feel most true are often the ones most worth questioning.

REFLECTION — APPLY THIS TO YOUR OBSTACLE

What is a thought that keeps coming up around that change or goal, something that might be more story than fact? What's actually true?

THE THOUGHT / THE TRUTH

TOOL TO SUPPORT THIS SKILL

Byron Katie's "The Work" — thework.com

A free, four-question process for examining the thoughts that keep you stuck. Simple, quiet, and surprisingly powerful. Start with one looping thought and run it through: Is it true? Can you absolutely know it's true? How do you react when you think it? Who would you be without it?
thework.com/instruction-the-work-byron-katie

Emotional Processing

Feel and receive the message emotions offer

Most of us were taught, directly or indirectly, to avoid discomfort, so we suppress, distract, or stay busy. But emotions are never random; they carry a message. And when we learn to actually feel what we're feeling, to receive that information and put it to use, we stop being run by it.

KEY INSIGHT

Emotions are energy in motion. They move when we let them. What we avoid doesn't disappear; it goes underground and runs the show from there.

REFLECTION — APPLY THIS TO YOUR OBSTACLE

As it relates to that change, is there an emotion you've been avoiding or managing? Not analyzing it, just noticing: what's there?

WHAT I NOTICE WHEN I STOP MANAGING IT

PRACTICES TO SUPPORT THIS SKILL

Schedule time to feel

Don't wait until it erupts. Build space into your week for breathwork, movement (dance, vigorous exercise), walks in nature, or gentle yoga, anything that lets the body process what the mind has been holding.

Also try: Untold, an AI voice journaling app. Talk through what's alive for you while walking. The combination of movement and voice opens things that sitting and typing doesn't. (Available on iOS & Android)

Massive Action

Move and iterate until you get results

Clarity comes from action, not before it. Massive action doesn't mean hustling; it means staying in motion, moving with what you have. Each step gives you more information. Each "failure" is redirection, not rejection. The people who reach the life or work they want are the ones who decided: I'm in this until it works, not if it works.

KEY INSIGHT

The most paralyzing belief is that you need to know where you're going before you can move. You don't. You just need to take one honest step.

REFLECTION — APPLY THIS TO YOUR OBSTACLE

What is one small action you could take in the next week around that goal or change, something that gets you in motion, not something that gets it solved?

MY ONE STEP THIS WEEK

WHAT I'M WILLING TO LEARN FROM IT, REGARDLESS OF OUTCOME

PRACTICE TO SUPPORT THIS SKILL

The Weekly Micro-Experiment

Pick one small experiment to run each week, not a commitment, an experiment. Name it, try it, notice what you learn. The goal isn't success; the goal is information. Stay curious, stay in motion, and watch how clarity builds from there.

Result Creation

Recognize your experience as something you create

This is what happens when the first four skills compound. You shift from feeling like life is happening to you to recognizing yourself as the creator of your experience, from a place of genuine power. Your outer world is always a reflection of your inner world, and when that inner world shifts, results change, often without you forcing them.

KEY INSIGHT

By the time something shows up in your life, it's already a side effect. The change always happens inside first.

REFLECTION — APPLY THIS TO YOUR OBSTACLE

*What would it feel like to take ownership of that change, not as blame, but as power?
What becomes possible from that place?*

WHAT BECOMES POSSIBLE

BOOK RECOMMENDATION

"The Great Work of Your Life" — Stephen Cope

A searching, honest exploration of what it means to live from your deepest nature, to stop performing a version of yourself and actually inhabit your life. Rich with story, grounded in ancient wisdom, written for anyone carrying a change that feels larger than a goal.

Your Intention

The Vital 5 aren't steps; they're a system. The more you practice one, the more you access the others. You don't have to have all five running at once. Start where it's alive, stay with it, and let the compound effect do the rest.

- Awareness — I can see it more clearly than I did before.
- Thought Choice — I've questioned a thought that wasn't serving me.
- Emotional Processing — I've made space for what's actually there.
- Massive Action — I have one step I'm willing to take.
- Result Creation — I'm practicing ownership, not blame.

What is one shift, one question, or one commitment you're taking forward from this work?

MY INTENTION

THE VERSION OF ME WHO HAS MADE THIS CHANGE — WHAT IS DIFFERENT ABOUT HOW THEY MOVE THROUGH LIFE?

INFINITE POTENTIAL

With Gratitude,
With Respect,
With Love,
Thank You.

infinitepotential.space